Sou kisa cherchè, anseyan, ekriven, elèv ka ekri pou esplwate richès kiltirèl Ayiti?

On what can researchers, teachers, writers, students write to exploit the cultural richness of Haiti?

Se yon tèz ki ta pi long pase rivyè Le Nil si pou n ta devlope l an lon e an laj. Men se yon kesyon enpòtan ki ka oryante nou nan lòt direksyon pou n panse, e repanse a richès kiltirèl Ayiti, ki, nan yon sans, poko vrèman esplwate.

It's a thesis that would be longer than the Nile River if we were to develop it in depth. But it's an important question that can orient us in other directions to think and rethink about the cultural richness of Haiti, in a way, that has not yet been exploited.

Se pa paske pa gen ekriven ayisyen, men petèt se do yon kesyon oryantasyon lè yo chwazi sa pou ekri, rechèch pou fè (ki ka yon obligasyon) san panse sou yon nese site pou ekri sou yon seri sijè kle, sijè de baz pou kite dèyè yon testaman pou jenerasyon ki poko wè solèy jodi, e pou ouvri plis fenèt nan kad rechèch, men ak fokis sou aspè kiltirèl peyi d Ayiti.

It's not because there aren't Haitian writers, but maybe it maybe a question of orientation when they choose what to write, research to do (that can be an obligation) without thinking on the "necessity" to write on series of key subjects, basic subjects to leave behind a testament for generations that have not yet seen today's sun, and open more windows to research but with focus on the cultural aspect of Haiti.

Apre yon seri (gwo) rechèch, tèz, atik kèk cherchè (etranje kou natif) konn ekri sou Ayiti, anpil fwa yo blye esplwate tout richès kiltirèl peyi sa a (ak plim yo) pou pwofite ekri sou sa (menm si se ta se kèk atik).

After some (great) research, theses and dissertations, articles some researchers (foreign as well as natives) write about Haiti, many times they forget to exploit all of the cultural richness of that country (with their pen) to take advantage about that (even it is some articles).

Lè n ap fè rechèch sou yon sijè, oubyen yon tèm an patikilye, nou vin apresye anpil fwa tout sa nou te ka jwenn ki ekri sou li.

When researching on a subject, or on a particular theme, often times we come to appreciate all that's we are able to find on it.

Lontan, pou moun ki aletranje (ou menm an Ayiti) ki t ap ekri, fè rechèch sou lòt peyi ou lòt kilti, sa te pi difisil pou yo paske fò yo ta al fouye atik (nan jounal, revi, liv) ki pibliye pou ta wè sa yo di sou sijè a, epi eseye jwenn kèk moun ki ta soti nan peyi /kilti sa a (pandan yo aletranje) pou ta entèvyoure yo.

In the past, for people who are abroad (or even in Haiti) who were writing, and researching on other countries or culture, it would more difficult for them because they would have to look for articles (from newspapers, journals), published books to see what they say on the subject, finding some people from this country /culture (while abroad) to interview them.

Men ak entènèt la jounen jodi, nenpòt kote nou ta ye nan lemnnon, osi lontan moun pibliye sou entènèt la (sou yon sijè patikilye), n ap gen aksè li piblikasyon elektwonik lan.

But with the internet access today, anywhere we may be in the world, as long as people publish online (on a particular subject), we will have access reading the electronic publication.

Sou ki tèm nou ka ekri (ki ta gen yon aspè kiltirèl, ki ta yon nesesite pou ekri sou li)? Se yon repons ki depan de chak moun ki vle ekri, kisa yo vle ekri, e konnen enpòtans sa genyen kòm yon èv imanitè (pou ede lòt moun k ap ekri, sa k ap fè rechèch, oryante moun pou ekri plis sou yon sijè espesyal oubyen devlope l plis).

On what theme can we write? (that would have a cultural aspect, that would be a necessity to write about it), is something that depends on each person who wants to write (and what they want to write) and know the importance that has as a humanitarian work (to help other people who are writing, those who are researching, orienting people to write more on a particular subject or to develop it in depth). So, in general, don't think if you write a one, two, tree page(s) article it's not important. It's not the length of what we write that will make people to take us for great writers, but it's rather its essence, weight, how an audience is going to interpret it, and it's value for that audience... That way, in this same line of ideas, we come up with a list of terms for people who are writing about Haiti to be able to look at, explore, develop, go and research more on them. Let's take a look at some of them:

Donk an jeneral, pa panse si ou ekri yon atik yon paj, de paj, twa paj li pa ta enpòtan. Se pa longè sa nou ekri a ki pral fè yo pran nou pou gwo ekiven, men pito esans, pwa li, kòman yon odyans pral entèprete l, se ki valè l genyen pou odyans sa a... Konsa, nan menm liy ide sa a, nou relve yon lis tèm pou moun k ap ekri sou Ayiti ta gade, esplore, devlope, ou al fè plis rechèch sou yo. Ann gade kèk ladan yo:

ABIMAN. Rad moun mete pou diferan okazyon, e.g, pou al lachas, legliz, lekòl (inifòm), nan antèman, nan fêt, nan klib (klèb, nayklib /nayklèb), nan maryaj /fyansay, nan plaj, nan pwomnad, nan randevou (pou al flannen, pou al nan sinema, travay, nan biwo, nan jaden, nan faktori, nan magazén, nan lari, elt.), vizite moun ki gen mótalite...].

DRESSING. Clothes people wear for different occasions: e.g., to go hunting, to church, to school (uniform), to a funeral, to a party, to a club, to the beach, on a fieldtrip, to a rendez-vous, to the movies, to work (in an office, in the field, in a factory, in a store, in the streets, etc.), visit people in mourning...].

ACTIVITIES ON SATURDAYS. A day full with activities, the busiest day for people (in the cities)...

ACTIVITIES SCHOOLS CAN DO WITH STUDENTS (especially on Fridays). In these activities, we can mention all that schools could have done as activities, activities that could have created to help students (broaden their knowledge) to help the society tomorrow...

INIFÒM LEKÒL (abiman, obligasyon). Pifò lekòl Ayiti (privé kou piblik) dwe gen inifòm. Anpil ladan yo pote inisyal lekòl la. Sa idantifye apatenans elèv la a yon enstitisyon; si l gen yon pwoblèm nan lari, li fasil pou idantifye l (menm si l pa ta gen yon katdidantite nasyonal obligatwa sou li). Inifòm nan ka parèt yon prestij pou elèv la (lè l mete l) paske, otomatikman, li idantifye apatenans elèv la a yon enstitisyon an patikilye. An menm tan tou, gen elèv ki ka kreye sèten prejije kont lòt (ki ta frekante lekòl ki pa tèlman gen gran renome).

SCHOOL UNIFORM (dress, obligation). Most schools in Haiti (private, public) should have uniforms. Many of them have the initial of the school. That identifies the student belonging to an institution; if he has a problem in the streets, it makes it easy to identify him (even if he didn't have a mandatory national I.D card on him). The uniform may appear to be a prestige for the student (when wearing it) because, automatically, it identifies the student's belonging to a particular institution. Also, at the same time, there are students that may create certain prejudices against others (who would attend schools which may not have great reputations).
